Hi Ladies,

We're celebrating the end of the quilt guild year with a potluck lunch on Thursday June 2nd. Please bring a dish to share and feel free to arrive a little early as we can begin eating as soon as 1pm. We will be installing our new board at this meeting. We'll also have a fun activity and will get more information about the upcoming guild challenge.

This has been a particularly challenging year for so many reasons, among them the complete lack of information I was given at the start of the guild year. With a lot of support from current and past members I did my best to keep the guild running. That was my reason for taking on the job of President, just to keep the guild going. I'm happy to turn over the job and all the information I've gathered to Sharon, knowing it will be in very capable hands. I'd like to thank those of you who supported me and helped me complete the job I blindly took on. If the job wasn't done to your satisfaction, perhaps you could take your turn running it next time. I wish you all a wonderful summer. Happy Quilting!

With best regards,

Frannie Marr

Programs

This is my last article for you as 1st VP. Karen Johnston and I are trading job titles in July but will continue to work together as a team. We've both had a lot of fun coming up with speakers and creative programs for the guild, and the upcoming years will be no different. The May meeting was a surprising success and plans are underway to repeat the format on a regular basis. We will announce the guidelines for the challenge at our June meeting and hope to see many of our members joining in on the fun. Karen will have more information for you.

*Happy quilting,
Ann Turley*

June Potluck

Come have fun with our group one last time before our summer "break" – bring whatever dish you want to share. The doors will open at 12:30. The Guild will be providing water, paper goods, and utensils.

See you there!

Quilts of Love

Dixie Johns

At the May guild meeting, members turned in seventeen quilts for Quilts of LOVE. Pictured here are some that will be delivered to the nonprofit Elizabeth Hospice, many of which were part of our last Saturday's workshop. Thanks for all these lovely creations.

Fallbrook Quilt Guild Board Meeting and General Minutes April and May 2022

Fallbrook Guild Board Meeting Minutes
April 13, 2022

Fallbrook Quilt Guild Meeting
May 5, 2022

The meeting was called to order at 1:30 by President Frannie Marr.

Announcements

Next month will be the potluck, door opens at 12:30 and we can start eating at 1:00. Everyone is invited to bring what they choose, water and paper goods provided.

Thanks to those completing the survey, still open to be accepted until May 15.

Today's featured speaker, Wendy Knight, had a family emergency and will not be presenting. Karen and Ann stepped in to present us with a unique meeting. Today we will be treated to quilts that tell a story. Several of our own members will be telling us the story behind the quilt.

We are all invited to take on the next challenge. You will have a chance to stretch your creativity and learn something new. There will be no fee. If you choose to pick up a piece of focus fabric, you are committing yourself to complete it.

Barb Anderson was the first to tell her story. Barb was taught by her grandmother to quilt and appliqué by hand. Her Jinny Beyer quilt took a year to complete and was hand pieced, appliquéd, and quilted. It is her tribute to her grandmother.

Irene Aulthaus shared her Grandmas Kitchen quilt, a Lori Holt pattern. Irene grew up on a farm in South Dakota living near her grandparents. Her grandfather emigrated from Germany to South Dakota where he farmed. When her grandparents retired her family moved into the house. Putting this quilt together reminded her of her grandmother, never without an apron, making cakes and bread, all the utensils from the kitchen. She designed the border and used wrapped rickrack for effect.

Deb Raver shared her quilt that features fabric brought to her by her son after his trip to New Zealand. Deb, an accomplished appliquér created a beautiful 9-block quilt using the batik fabric for the appliqués. The quilt was presented to her son and is hanging in his bedroom.

Penny Bottomly shared her quilt “Remember When” created for her granddaughters. Every block represents some incident related to her grandchildren and other family members. The completed quilt has been given to her adult children to remind them of their children. She also shared a second quilt illustrating musicals and theater productions that are memorable to her children.

Chris Brewer paid tribute to her husband with the quilt she shared. It features his passion for cars from the 1900s to the present. He was moved to tears when she gave it to him. Chris related how she met her husband when she worked at the post office. He was impressed because she drove a 4-speed mustang. The quilt illustrates his journey through the years as a race car driver. Chris and her husband now drive around the country touring with their brass era cars from before the early 1900s.

Chris Gill shared a 1930’s appliquéd and embroidered quilt featuring block patterns from the Rainbow Quilt Company. William Pinch started in the 1920s creating patterns and by the 1930s had an entire line. Many of these patterns are familiar to us today.
